Bachelor of Arts in Social Sciences

The Bachelor of Arts in Social Sciences is a multidisciplinary programme that equips students with essential knowledge in communication, economics, politics, society and culture, fostering a deep understanding of societal dynamics.

Students enrolled in the BA programme can choose from the following areas of focus:

Communication Studies

Communication Studies help you understand the role of human communication in development, from individual to institutional levels. This discipline enables you to analyze how communication processes impact the quality of life within a social system, shaping human freedom and empowering others.

Understanding communication theory allows you to influence system-based reforms in areas such as governance, peace and non-violent communication, agricultural extension, health communication, and political communication. The curriculum fosters a liberating impact on the mind.

Economics and Development Studies

Economics examines how societies, governments, businesses, households, and individuals allocate scarce resources. This discipline features the development of conceptual models to predict responses to policy and market changes, and the use of analytical models to investigate these changes. The study of economics provides knowledge of economic principles and exposes you to specialized branches of economic analysis, enhancing your understanding of development issues from an economic perspective. You will gain insights into critical economic events and become an informed participant in the modern economy.

Politics and International Relations Studies

Politics and International Relations Studies courses enable you to understand the complexities of national, global, and societal politics. This focus area provides conceptual exposure to the science and art of politics, helping you become an astute observer of societies, governments, and political systems worldwide. You will develop political thinking and critical reflection skills. Subjects include politics and governance, political ideologies, gender and politics, cyber politics, politics under globalization, international political economy, conflict, war and peace, political violence, security, world politics, and political theory. This focus is ideal for those interested in studying political processes, institutions, global politics, and politics at the government and societal levels.

Society and Culture Studies

Drawing from Sociology and Social Anthropology, Society and Culture Studies offer a broad range of topics on social institutions and cultural processes. This discipline equips you with the concepts, knowledge, and skills to understand and analyze social issues. Topics include globalization, marriage and family, education, political systems, social movements, religious institutions, identity, social psychology, gender, and development. This area of study is particularly useful for those curious about people, society, and culture, and for those planning a people-oriented career.

Gananath Obeysekera Gold Medal for the Best Student in Sociology

Society is like an intriguing book that becomes more fascinating as one begins to study it. My passion for studying society led me to pursue the BA Degree in Social Sciences at OUSL. After joining OUSL, I was truly delighted with my decision. The unique open distance learning method at OUSL enables students of all age groups and diverse educational backgrounds to study together. The exclusive teaching and learning techniques at OUSL have helped us become independent learners through a well-structured curriculum, an LMS, and day schools. The academic staff in the Department of Social Studies are always willing to assist, offering constructive feedback to improve our studies. The dispersed network of regional educational centers makes the long-distance open learning system successful. As an employed student, I faced no barriers in continuing my higher studies due to the flexibility and guidance provided by OUSL, which allowed me to manage my time effectively.

Consequently, I was able to achieve a first-class in the BA in Social Sciences and win the Gamini Corea Gold Medal for the Best Student in the Bachelor of Arts in Social Sciences for the academic year 2017/2018, as well as the Gananath Obeyesekere Gold Medal for Excellence in Sociology in the same academic year. DHAMMIKA WASALA

Double Gold Medallist 2019

Gamani Corea Gold Medal for the Best Student in Social Sciences

H. A. De S. Gunasekara Gold Medal for the Best Student in Economics

I am W.M.D.C. Wasala and I completed my Bachelor of Arts degree in Social Sciences, majoring in Economics and Development Studies, at the Open University of Sri Lanka, Kurunegala Regional Center. I graduated with an overall GPA of 3.7 and was awarded the Gamini Corea Gold Medal for the best student in Bachelor of Arts in Social Sciences, as well as the H.A. De S. Gunasekara Gold Medal for the best student in Economics for the academic period of 2016-2019. It was not an achievement that happened overnight; it required months of dedication, hard work, and determination. I chose the right place for this purpose, and within three years, I completed an internal degree. I began my studies at the Open University while juggling the roles of wife, teacher, and student. Balancing these responsibilities was a challenging task. My greatest learning outcome was developing the courage to challenge myself and step out of my comfort zone. Though difficult at first, the results were overwhelmingly positive. The flexible timetable, day schools, peer discussions, and learning materials provided by the university greatly aided me in achieving this goal.

The realization of my dream to receive these awards was made possible by the unwavering motivation and support I received from my family and the Open University of Sri Lanka, Kurunegala Regional Center. Special thanks go to the coordinators and all the lecturers who provided me with tremendous encouragement throughout my studies. I believe that while hard work is crucial, it should not come at the expense of the relationships we build. As a Social Science student, I have learned to excel academically while maintaining a balanced personal life.
